AERIE

1955

The AERIE staff members dedicate this yearbook to their beloved classmate, Karen Lee Fox, whose untimely death on December 25, 1953, brought sorrow to both school and community.

Karen loved life, and in spite of illness she lived every day to the full. She was a member of the school band, chorus, Sunshine Society, library staff, and Latin Club. In addition, she was Past Honored Queen of Job's Daughters and a National Honor Society initiate. Since she was always cheerful and busy, no one realized the seriousness of Karen's illness.

The seniors of '55 will always cherish the memory of a small, vivacious blond who gave them not only her friendship, but also an example of courage and selfless service.

FOREWORD

We have produced this book of memories, not as a work of art, but as a memento of our fleeting school years.

This past year has been filled to the brim with activity. The life of each of us has revolved around school work, clubs, ball games, plays, dances, and parties. The staff hopes that it has recaptured for you in this publication "a thousand memories and not a single regret."

HISTORY OF Z.H.S. CLASS OF '55

September 2, 1943, was Discovery Day for 52 pupils who streamed into Mrs. Bessie Smith's room for their first experience with textbooks. While we were trying to adjust ourselves to the ways of school, the faculty and officials were trying to provide adequate facilities for our education. The problem was ultimately solved when Mrs. Eloise Corbin was hired to teach half of us. Thus even in the first grade we began to make history as the first divided class. Twenty-one of us graduating this year enrolled that historical year. Those in Mrs. Smith's section were: Betsy Atkinson, Bob Atkinson, Gene Marsh, David McCray, Bob Moore, Sandra Sanders, Jerry Smith, Suzanne Stewart, John Venard, and Don West; in Mrs. Corbin's were: Ralph Atkinson, Bill Barger, Carl Crane, Nancy Harmon, Joyce Jervis, Bill Kaser, Jack McClellan, Ruth Miller, Don Pavey, Lloyd Sadler, and Jon Sharp.

We began the second chapter of our education with Miss Euva Harvey as our teacher. Mary Dome and Ralph McFarland joined us this year.

Sonny Smith and Ronald Hudson became members of our group in the third grade, when Miss Janet Schuetz was our teacher.

In the fourth grade Mrs. Irene Sprong was our teacher, and Kenny Atkinson entered the class. We believed ourselves quite grown-up this year, for we had recess with the fifth and sixth grades instead of the first and second.

Mrs. Margaretta Davidson was our teacher in the fifth grade. At this point in our progress Bob Dulin joined us.

Two who linked their names with ours in the sixth grade, when Mr. Verne Moore was our teacher, were Marion Adkinson and Sonny Smith, who re-entered from Clay Center.

As we entered the seventh grade and junior high, with Mr. Jenkinson as our first sponsor and a different teacher for each subject, we lost some of our self-confidence and again felt some of the uncertainty of our beginning year.

In the eighth grade we re-entered the limelight when we won the Junior High Basketball Championship. Our sponsor this year was Mr. DePeugh.

As freshmen we entered the third phase of our schooling. Among other things we won another Basketball Championship, which impressed the entire high school and made us feel quite important. Mr. Dome was our sponsor. Martishi Boffo, Joan Neese, Dave Beldon, and Marilyn Daglish entered our class. Sonny Smith re-entered, this time to remain.

Miss Dorothy Roby and Mr. Walter Harmon became our permanent sponsors in our sophomore year. Thelma Turner, Larry Smiley, and Don Buskirk all entered the group this year. We looked forward to our junior and senior years with great enthusiasm. The boys joined Hi-Y, and the girls gazed admiringly at junior rings.

As juniors we learned how to work as a real team, and Winona Hummel joined us in our efforts. First we sold candy and ice cream during noon hours and at basketball games; then we received our long-awaited class rings, and finally our dreams of an outstanding Prom came true through more planning and hard work than any of us had thought possible. The theme was "Paris in the Springtime."

Only one thing dimmed the joy of this busy year, and that was the death of our beloved classmate, Karen Lee Fox, to whom this book is dedicated.

All of our activities and aspirations have culminated in this final year. With the knowledge that our time to make history in Z.H.S. is short, we strive to improve our school record, earn money for our class fund, and shoulder a senior's share of responsibilities. We have made many choices, including rose and charcoal as our colors and a pink carnation as our flower, and we shall make many more momentous ones in the months to come.

We can still look forward to many activities together—our trip, our class play, the Prom, Baccalaureate, and finally Commencement. To our parents, our teachers, and the people of our community we extend our thanks for twelve memorable years in school. Our past is summed up in the pages of this book. We sum up our feeling for the future in our motto, "Today we follow; tomorrow we lead."

CLASS WILL

We, the seniors of '55, have had "Bigger and Better" as our slogan in all our activities throughout our school years. Now that we are about to graduate, we want to make the biggest possible contribution to a better (?) life for those we leave behind. Therefore we bequeath the following treasured traits and possessions:

I, Dave Beldon, will to Tom Woodrum my modified '48 pick-up truck with the stipulation that he must keep stock mufflers on it.

I, Winona Hummel, bequeath to Janet Sue Rosenstihl my ability to reason, provided she takes chemistry and makes the grades I did.

I, Suzanne Stewart, will to Bud Marsh my ability as a dance instructor, provided that he practices and masters the jitterbug.

I, Bob Moore, will my seat on George Berry's bus to Larry Pigg.

I, Ruth Miller, will to Betty Smith my task of typing the feature page for the school paper with a reasonable number of errors.

I, Thelma Turner, will my position as club writer on the EAGLE REVIEW staff to Sharyn King, with the understanding she will always have the news in, three days before the deadline.

I, Carl Crane, will the enjoyment of going around "S" curves on the way to school to Marcia Foster.

I, Lloyd Sadler, will my ability to slide around corners to Bob Bennington, provided he hits no trees.

I, Mary Dome, will my short hair to Jacque Packard, provided she keeps hers equally short.

I, Dave McCray, will to Dan Fix my grades in civics.

I, Don Pavey, will my ability to make good grades to Janet Atkinson.

I, Jack McClellan, will my ability to keep a deadpan expression while making a speech to Sammy Fix.

I, Ralph McFarland, will my "squirrel eye" to Carl Stewart, provided that he doesn't strain it while looking for deer.

I, Don West, will my race track on Road 334 to Elizabeth Nyland.

I, Bill Kaser, will to Mr. Warner my favorite fishing hole, with the provision that he must keep it a secret.

I, Martishi Boffo, will to Jim Barrick my bobby pins, provided he will promise to curl his hair every night.

I, Sonny Smith, will my ability to lead yells to Harry Pavey, provided he doesn't just help himself to a pep session.

I, Joan Neese, will to Sally Smiley my seat on the Union School bus, provided she doesn't have a private chauffeur.

I, Marion Adkinson, will to Dan Fix, the way I pronounce spelling words in Miss Roby's English class, provided he can get away with it.

I, Don Buskirk, will my nickname "Buzzy" to Gene Turner.

I, Gene Marsh, will my late arrivals at school to Janet Atkinson, with the provision that she must not be late more than twice a year.

I, Nancy Harmon, will my position in charge of the candy counter at Cruse & Co. to Maurice Kessler, who is very eager to take over.

I, Larry Smiley, cheerfully will my bottle of shoe polish to any one who thinks he can keep his "saddles" more spotless than mine.

I, Betsy Atkinson, will my position on the Block's Fashion Board to Sammy Fix, provided he promises to model only formals.

I, Johnny Venard, will my curly hair to Eugene Pock, provided he pins it up to least once a week.

I, Robert Atkinson, will my phenomenal typing speed to Ernie Oden, provided he types 30 words per minute and doesn't burn up the typewriter doing it.

I, Sandy Sanders, will my title "most mischievous girl in Zionsville," to Marty Barrick, provided she stays away from Jimmy around Halloween.

I, Joyce Jervis, will my habit of primping in classrooms to Jacque Packard, provided she tries not to annoy her teachers.

I, Bob Dulin, will my seat in first period study hall to Joey Klingler so that he can talk to John Shoemaker about his girls.

I, Marilyn Daglish, will to Ernie Oden my size 4 shoes, provided he doesn't stretch them.

I, Ronald Hudson, will my highly-prized position of head basketball manager to Daniel V. Fix, provided he makes his assistant do all the dirty work.

I, Jon Sharp, will to Sally Smiley my honored position as baby (youngest) of the senior class.

I, Bill Barger, will myself to any good looking rich girl who wants me.

I, Jerry Smith, will my driver's license and good record to Terry Hallcom, provided he stays away from Hamilton.

I, Kenny Atkinson, will my ability to slide around in the school yard to Tom Woodrum, provided he doesn't use a sled.

I, Ralph Atkinson, will my car to the junior class, provided they get a safe driver.

CLASS PROPHECY

The year is 1975. A mighty eagle—symbol of our country, township, school, and teams—leaves his solitary nest on a mountain peak to seek the members of the Z. H. S. Senior Class of '55.

As the eagle flies slowly over Texas, he sees Thelma Turner, who is serving as that state's first ambassador. On he soars until he reaches the great midwestern city of Zionsville. Instantly he sees four people whom he recognizes. Ralph Atkinson heads the list as principal and chief paddle-handler of the new high school. In this building he also sees Don Pavey, who has succeeded Mrs. Edith Reese as typing teacher. Mr. Pavey reports that all of his students have received their 70-word pins. Still engrossed in his favorite subject, Bill Barger has taken Miss Roby's place as English teacher. Peering into the office, the eagle blinks in amazement. Here sits Dave Beldon, Director of Public Relations.

As the great eagle wings his way aloft to leave Zionsville, he sees a limousine pull up to the curb, and a chauffeur opens the door for a distinguished-looking man. He recognizes Carl Crane, millionaire owner of the country's most productive oil well.

The mighty eagle hovers over the outskirts of the city, where he sees Winona Hummel, chief needle jabber and straight-jacket expert in the Zionsville Booby Hatch. Also, the winged observer catches a glimpse of Nancy Harmon, who is private secretary to the president of John Deere Implement Company.

As he leaves the midwestern city, the bird's feathers are ruffled when Jerry Smith, setting a new speed record between Zionsville and Carmel, breezes down the road.

Flying south, the eagle views with his piercing eyes several of the class of '55 who are now in Indianapolis. Jon Sharp, who has always liked journalism, is selling THE ZIONSVILLE TIMES on the streets of the city. The world's largest used-car lot is owned by Lloyd Sadler. Ralph McFarland is rollin' in dough at the Continental Baking Company. At General Motors he learns that Jack McClellan is the new vice president and has over $10,000,000 in stock.

The eagle hovers over the stock-car race tracks long enough to see Don West become the only person to win his 1000th race in an Olds '98. At the nearby Indianapolis Speedway track he sees Bobby Atkinson, now the ace driver of Jimmy Woodchuck's race car, The Woodpulp Special.

Northward the eagle flies, pausing at Eagle Village long enough to see Joan Neese, private secretary to the president of the Better Bubble Gum Factory, and Ronnie Hudson, president of the You-Lose-All Bank.

Still northward he soars until he reaches the second largest city in the state of Indiana, Waugh. Here he finds four members of the class of '55. Betsy Atkinson is chief bottle washer and pill pusher at Waugh General Hospital; Martishi Boffo is top popsicle taster for the Snowball Icicle Company; Marion Adkinson is special lipstick taster for Waugh Lipsticks, Inc., and Mr. Kenneth Atkinson is the town marshal and jailor.

Before he leaves Indiana, the eagle views two more Z. H. S. graduates. Whitestown boasts a Bachelors' Unanimous Club, of which Marilyn Daglish is private secretary. The Shannondale basketball team has Sandy Sanders as its first captain.

After a long flight to Washington, D. C., the mighty eagle rests on the White House. From there he sees Ruth Miller, the first woman representative to Congress from Big Springs, and Suzanne Stewart, who runs a dress-designing studio for retired secretaries.

A short journey brings the inquiring bird to New York. This city boasts(?) of John Venard, who is assistant to the assistant to the assistant metallurgist at the U. S. Rocket Research Center. Gene Marsh stars as first-string catcher for the New York Yankees. Dave McCray is author of the five novels which top the best-seller list. Bob Dulin and Bob Moore are owners of the leading dance studio in New York. They give lessons to girls only. On a theatre billboard the eagle spies a picture of Don Buskirk, who has taken Julius LaRosa's place as the bobby soxers' hero.

While visiting a shut-in friend at the Brooklyn Zoo, the eagle meets Mary Dome, superintendent of nurses for baby chimpanzees.

As the great bird leaves New York on his mission of discovery, he passes a giant man-made bird of American Airlines. Within he sees Joyce Jervis, noted stewardess.

In Baghdad the eagle finds Bill Kaser, the world's most famous speech instructor. Also, he sees Sonny Smith, the gifted aeronautical engineer who designed the first interplanetary plane. Lastly, he finds Larry Smiley, now a member of the Foreign Legion serving in El Gheriat esc Schergia, Africa.

His mission ended, the mighty eagle returns to America, where he settles wearily on his nest in the Rockies to ponder over the marvels he has seen.
